PARTE WORKSHOP 1

Partitive Determiners and Partitive Case

Ca' Foscari University of Venice 13-14 November 2017

PARTE (PARTitivity in European languages) is a network of theoretical linguists, dialectologists, sociolinguists, typologists, historical linguists and applied linguists of the following institutions: University of Amsterdam, Meertens Institute, University of Zurich, Ca' Foscari University of Venice, University of Pavia, Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary (Budapest), University of Leipzig, Goethe University Frankfurt, University of Turku. It is funded by NWO (the Netherlands Organization for scientific research) and co-funded by the Universities of Zurich, Venice, Budapest and Pavia.

Although the interest in the concept of partitivity has continuously increased in the last decades and has given rise to considerable advances in research, Partitive Elements (PE), which are typologically marked, display a fine-grained morpho-syntactic and semantic variation across European languages, a variation that is far from being described, let alone understood. The main obstacle to this is the fact that, up to now, PEs have been analysed only in restricted linguistic environments, and in general only for one language/variety, without a pan-European perspective. The goal is to work on this phenomenon in a comparative and interdisciplinary perspective, studying the emergence and spread of markers of partitivity, the theoretical analysis of these elements (articles pronouns, cases), and the strong affectedness of these elements by language contact (change or loss).
