Description

The Department of Linguistic and Comparative Cultural studies at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia invites applications for a fellowship in:

Title: Text, Music and Pop Culture - Theoretical models of linguistic-literary analysis and cultural production trends, between poetry, music, performance and visual arts

Scientific area: Hispanic American Literature

Abstract:

The project should focus on the status of theoretical and comparative studies on the cross production of poetic and musical texts, representations and performances, with attention to the migration of languages into new media. Exemplary case studies, figures and prominent textual bodies in the international diorama will be identified, favoring border cultures, the center / periphery dialectic, the interaction between different social levels and the different artistic-literary generations. Particular attention will be given to the phenomena of translation and transposition. With reference to the award of the Alberto Dubito International Prize in 2018 to Raúl Zurita, theoretical and in-depth studies on Hispano-American (especially Chilean) and Italian poetry will be promoted, in contact through the phenomenon of emigration and in current production
