abstract:

The research aims to develop a methodology for the involvement of stakeholders useful for the implementation of case studies and strategies of mainstreaming in the field of tourism sustainability and food system sectors. These activities will aim at:

1. Analysing case studies, in the frame of AlterEco Plus project, in the tourism sector, with a specific focus on the theme of the touristic overtourism useful to define strategies of mainstreaming linked to the problems of tourism carrying capacity. This will also support “mainstreaming processes” to improve public policies related to tourism management.

This includes the organisation of project meetings; project communication, internal communication and knowledge exchange, links to relevant news and publications; project planning and progress control;

Evaluation and transfer of the input of the communication platform on the website; providing extended annual review of the dissemination activities, including compilation of individual actions, reports

This activity also includes the internal monitoring, quality control and sex and gender balance monitoring. It includes the overall project strategy implementation, including project planning, participation in social media, dissemination through external events and communication activities linked to the mainstreaming process:

2. building a database of stakeholders and case studies in the field of urban and regional food systems useful to highlight cases of success or failure in food production, distribution, reuse and disposal systems in the cities observed within the project CITIES2030. Data collection, reporting and presentation activities and participation in project meetings in the presence and online are planned. Project management, communication, dissemination and coordination between partners, promotion of research phases, partial and final results relating to the research activity itself and the project (such as meetings, conferences, presentations, newsletters, etc.) are also required
