Description

The Department of Environmental Sciences, Informatics and Statistics at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia invites applications for fellowship in:

TITLE: Governance of the interconnected and remote climate-related risks in the EU/Africa-Caribbean-Pacific Partnership countries

SSD: CHIM/12

Tutor: Prof. A. Marcomini

Duration: 12 months

Abstract: The scope of the research is to analyze remote climate change-related risks in countries outside of the European Union which may create knock-on or cascading effects eventually affecting the EU. It will focus on countries of strategic importance for European External Actions, international cooperation and development. Working with a team of researchers, the Fellow will explore what remote climate risks are recognised in the EU policy framework, how these have been or can be hedged against, and how resilience and coping/adaptive capacity in the relevant non-EU countries can be fostered.

The aims of this research fellowships are:

- Analyse governance, risk reduction and climate adaptation policies in the ACP countries, in particular in Ghana, Niger, Mozambique and other countries chosen for the detailed analysis; and conduct desk review of the humanitarian crises and the post-disaster needs assessments; and analyze the EU humanitarian and post-disaster reconstruction and development aid provided for these countries.
- Analyse the EU external services and security-related policies, the new EU-ACP Partnership agreement, along with the priorities of these policies (as they evolved over the past 10 years or so) and identify gaps and prospective solutions to building resilience and hedge against potential cascading or propagated risks to EU stability and resilience.

The research can be carried out in English. The fellowship is intended to provide the successful candidate with the opportunity to pursue his/her own research while benefiting from the range of expertise at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia.
