Establishes the following:

Art. 1 - Scope

1. A public selection is announced to award 1 fellowship lasting 12 months, with the possibility of renewal within the limits of art. 2 of the Regulations on university research fellowship awarding, which will be subject to a specific contract.

The expected starting date is October 2022.

The research fellowship amounts to Euro 24,320.38 per year, gross to the recipient, net of the expenses to be sustained by the employer. The amount may be subject to adjustment in the event of variations in the law.

2. The research fellowship is awarded for the purpose of collaboration with the following research programme of THE NEW INSTITUTE Centre for Environmental Humanities - NICHE:

Title: Interaction between Buddhism and the environment in the modern world in the context of spiritual or religious ecology

Scientific disciplinary sector and/or disciplines specifically identified by the call: L-OR/17

Scientific coordinator and tutor: Prof. Francesca Tarocco

Duration: 12 months

The project focuses on attitudes, values and practices regarding nature within the world's religions. It identifies ways of interacting with nature that inspire human responses of respect, protection, and appropriate uses of nature. The field of religious or spiritual ecology has several approaches, including (1): identifying theological approaches to nature within the world's religious traditions; (2) finding points of contact with the pre-existing field of environmental ethics developed within Western philosophy; (3) highlighting possible practices for a religious environmentalism situated in specific contexts; (4) developing responses to specific problems such as climate change, environmental justice, food security, and toxicities; and (5) drawing on the insights of artists and writers who articulate the complexity of nature. This work in spiritual and religious ecology is opening the field of religious studies to a broader understanding of what religion is and what its mechanisms are, beyond Western interpretive categories. The nature of religion is not fully explored by Monotheism in its various Abrahamic. Today, therefore, seeing religion through the lens of religious ecology allows us to orient human beings in the direction of the universe, rooting them in the community of nature and human beings, nurturing them in the fruitful processes of the earth, and transforming them into their deepest cosmological selves. The project will first examine Buddhist-inspired worldviews in which humans are seen as an integral part of a cosmos dominated by nature. Secondly, the project will focus on Buddhist-inspired practices and articulations concerning nonhuman animals and human-animal relations in the modern Mahayana (with a specific focus on China, Japan, Tibet, and Europe) and Theravada (with a specific focus on Thailand) worlds.

3. The selection aims to ascertain the scientific-professional requirements deemed necessary to carry out the above research activities.
