Description

The Department of Management at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia invites application for one-year fellowship in Craft in Europe between conservation and innovation, under the supervision of prof. Fabrizio Panozzo (SSD SECS-P/07 (Business Administration and Accounting Studies)).

Abstract: The research fellow will be integrated, also with project management roles, in the European Horizon project "Heritage in Europe: new technologies in craft for preserving and innovating future (HEPHAESTUS)". The project tackles the challenges posed to the traditional craftsmanship from global markets, technological changes, and digital technologies. The research fellow will be required to participate in the analysis and mapping of the threats and opportunities facing artisan companies with particular attention to the valorization of artisan knowledge in open archives and its mobilization to innovate relations with local communities. Specific objectives of the research are: (1) to revive and enhance traditional crafts by combining them with new and emerging technologies through innovative business models for the growth of the craft sector; (2) create a craft technology-led methodology to bring together traditional know-how with new cutting-edge technologies, circular economy and New Bauhaus principles to innovate craft processes in a sustainable way; (3) explore visions for the role of crafts in the future, integrating emerging technologies and contributing to the circular economy, engaging craft communities in a participatory ideation process; (4) develop courses, programs, study programs, entrepreneurial and organizational skillsets to relaunch the encounter between craft tradition and innovation; (5) collaborate in establishing action-oriented living labs for circular craft-driven design innovation (6) and establish sustainable craft-technology relationships by linking research and heritage sites, culture and creative sectors, institutions, universities and other research institutes, regional and national authorities, companies and other interested parties. Results will include:

- a review of the literature on the business models of craft companies
- a research document outlining the state of the art of the relationship between crafts and cultural producers in the project areas
- the organization of co-creation workshops involving craft companies, local communities and cultural producers
- a report outlining the methodology for promoting innovative partnerships with craft companies, tourism, and local development
- a research document based on the results of the field work and on the empirical analysis of the activated processes.

The research shall be carried out in Italian and English language. The fellowship is intended to provide the successful candidate with the opportunity to pursue his/her own research while benefiting from the range of expertise at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia.
