Description

The Department of Humanities at Ca' Foscari University of Venice (Dipartimento di Studi Umanistici dell'Università Ca' Foscari Venezia) invites applications for a fellowship in: “The Transnational Mobilization on Behalf of Political Prisoners in Germany (1918-1939 ca.)”, Academic discipline: M-STO/04 Contemporary history, duration 12 months, tutor Prof. Elena BACCHIN, financed by the PRIN 2022 project “Political Repression and International SOLidarity Networks (PRISON). The Transnational Mobilization on Behalf of Political Prisoners in the Interwar Period (1918-1939 ca.)” (codice progetto 2022XBMWZ3), CUP: H53D23000370006, Principal Investigator Prof. Elena BACCHIN.

Abstract: PRISON seeks to fill the gap in the history of transnational mobilization and solidarity on behalf of foreign political prisoners in the interwar period. It argues that political inmates were active players in, and a topic of concern for, the international community and contributed to shaping the political debate, the definition of legal tools and a specific form of humanitarianism. In the context of interwar internationalism, humanitarian associations and political committees intervened on behalf of foreign political prisoners. Within the communist world, different entities emerged from the beginning of the 1920s and after the rise to power of Nazism in Germany. The research, through an investigation of primary and secondary sources, will focus in particular on the Rote Hilfe, and German mobilization on behalf of foreign political prisoners, as well as international reactions towards Nazi repression of political dissidents.

The research may be carried out in English.
