Description

The Department of Linguistic and Comparative Cultural studies at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia invites applications for a fellowship in:

Title: Collection and annotation of a dataset of linguistic productions aimed at studying the verbal argument structure

Scientific area: L-LIN/01

Abstract:

This grant is part of the PRIN initiative "Computational and Linguistic bEnchmarks for the study of VERb argument structuRe" (CLEVER), whose aim is to gather evidence on Italian argument structure from three different source of knowledge that are typically used in distinct linguistics subfields: human acceptability judgments; behavioral data that are sensitive to the time course of linguistic processing (e.g., eye-tracking data, reading times); the distributional representations that can be generated by using Neural Language Models.

Specifically, the initial phase of this project focuses on constructing a collection of Italian sentences that showcase phenomena pertinent to the examination of argument structure. This collection will be enriched with metalinguistic judgments and behavioral data. Conversely, the second phase aims to analyze the information encoded in the entire dataset to investigate several linguistic phenomena such as the distinction between arguments and adjuncts, the conditions that regulate the omission of arguments, the nature of related inferences to semantic roles, the factors that influence the acceptability of valence coercion and the choice between argument alternations.

Part of the research will be carried out in English.

The fellowship is intended to provide the successful candidate with the opportunity to pursue his/her own research while benefiting from the range of expertise at Università Ca' Foscari Venezia.
