abstract:

The researcher will work on the design of a pricing scheme for methane emissions from the European electricity sector, which shall be both politically and legally feasible, as well as suitable for being embedded in the EU-ETS European emission market.

Expected output: The researcher will contribute to the development of a theoretical model concerning the choice of the input mix and output level of power plants in a partially competitive market, and will use it as a tool to perform an ex-ante evaluation of the theoretical efficiency of various pricing schemes for methane emissions.
