Title: Formation and development of linguistic terminology in early Arabic linguistic sources

Scientific disciplinary sector and/or disciplines specifically identified by the call: STAA-01/L

Scientific coordinator and tutor: Dr. Simona Olivieri

Duration: 12 months

Abstract: The ALiDiM project aims to conduct a metalinguistic analysis of the standardization process of Classical Arabic as described by early scholars. It will investigate the formation of the Arabic linguistic thinking and grammar-making of Classical Arabic, accounting also for extralinguistic factors. The methodology builds on the combination of textual and metalinguistic analysis and capitalizes on the adoption of digital approaches. By adopting a wider cultural perspective, we will research how the Arabic linguistic literature can be interpreted as an expression of socio-political concerns. The focus will be on the metalinguistic aspects of language description, rather than on the linguistic features described. Using a text-based approach, the project will study key Arabic linguistic works from the 7th to the 10th century, considering both local Arab-Islamic frameworks and external influences. Ultimately, the project seeks to develop a new understanding of the origin and formation of the Arabic linguistic tradition, tracing origins and reception of the linguistic themes and identifying the factors that contributed to the process of language standardization of Classical Arabic.
