"Investments to encourage growth and employment";

Description

The Department of Molecular Sciences and Nanosystems of the Ca' Foscari University of Venice, on the basis of Decree no. 178/2021 prot. n. 15785 of 04/03/2021 on the awarding of research grants for visiting fellows, hereby calls for applications for the research entitled "Comparative analysis of the extraction procedures of processing residues from the agri-food sector, specifically of fruit, horticultural and honey production, for the selective obtaining of terpenes and terpenoids with antioxidant and anti-inflammatory action" lasting 3

The Visiting Fellow must perform the following research:

the project intends to benefit from a visiting scholar in the Young Talents category, identified in a figure in possession of a master degree in Chemistry or preferably a research doctorate (PhD in chemistry already obtained or in the process of being obtained upon application) who has already acquired knowledge in the field of issues related to the enhancement of various types of biomass waste. Even more specifically, a scientific curriculum will be required that testifies to the acquisition of a research experience capable of integrating the topic of the green economy declined in the transformation of waste of renewable origin with the methods and principles of Green Chemistry and engineering. sustainable (process) chemistry. Furthermore, since this is the selection of a young scholar, the international value of the group / s who have / have supervised the training will be assessed in order to give priority, if possible, to profiles who have worked in prestigious scientific environments that are relevant in the recovery of waste biomass both for the quality of their publications and for contacts and projects with the business world of the sector in Europe and overseas. Consistent with this proposal, the visiting scholar will have to develop within the project a comparative analysis of the expected extraction procedures of agrifood processing residues and examine the sustainability of the treatments in the context of the green economy. In the period (3 months) in which he / she will be involved in the project, his / her activity will be mainly associated with that of the research fellow I, contributing to the research objectives as regards the selection and pre-treatment of residual biomasses already described elsewhere. , and the green design of their extraction with supercritical CO<sub>2</sub>. Overall, this visiting fellowship will be enhanced to encourage international scientific exchange and cooperation between the universities involved and with a view to developing new projects shared in the topic in question, but also to facilitate research through the study and analysis of good experimental practices enriched by the experiential knowledge of the RdA and UF business partners.
