- abstract: The Iron Age village of Bostel di Rotzo plays a key role in the study of frontier contexts between the world of the Ancient Veneti and the Rhaetian Fritzens-San Zeno facies, and it fully belongs to the cultural facies of the Magrè group. With its four excavation sectors currently under investigation and over eight areas excavated in past years, the site has provided significant evidence regarding the internal spatial organization of the village and the distribution and function of spaces within the individual excavation areas.

The research aims to reconstruct, based on excavation data and current structural conditions observed in a diachronic perspective, how the individual domestic and artisanal structures presently under excavation (or in an advanced phase of excavation) must have appeared in antiquity. The research fellow will be provided with all the data collected specifically for this type of investigation during the latest field campaigns, including almost daily photogrammetric 3D acquisitions of the excavation sectors. The fellow's task will be to model in 3D the individual sectors at different stages of excavation progress; to extract photomosaics, digital elevation models, and solid 3D models; to reconstruct how the structures must have originally appeared, making use also of the most recent innovations in the field such as extended matrix approaches or similar methods (adapted to the specific context and to be defined together with the supervisor case by case); and to populate the reconstructed structures with the material finds, positioned topographically within them.

Finally, the fellow will be expected to participate in public events and field activities directly or indirectly involving the Bostel di Rotzo site.

The amount of the short-term research fellowship is equal to € 3.350,00 gross percipient and will be subject to taxation according to current regulations. It will be paid in bimonthly instalments after certification of the regular performance of the activity.

Deadline: 26th November 2025 h. 12 p.m.
