

Ca' Foscari University of Venice

Department of Asian and North African Studies

CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES ON ANIMALS AND COLONIALISM

Virtual lecture series organized and moderated by Alexandra Isfahani-Hammond (University of California, San Diego) and Federica Timeto (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

May 23, 2025, 6.00 p.m. CET

9 a.m. PT; 12 p.m. ET; 1 a.m. JST [May 24]; 2 a.m. AEST [May 24]

Claire Jean Kim

University of California, Irvine

Fighting for Animals in an Anti-Black World

This talk asks animal advocates to reckon with the fact that their work unfolds in the context of structural anti-Blackness, in the U.S. and around the world. Do animal studies and the animal movement as currently constituted tend to reproduce the abjection of Blackness in pursuing the liberation of nonhuman animals? If so, what possibilities exist for building an animal movement which supports Black liberation as well?

For further information and registration