

ALPHA seminar

ELEONORA SELVI

Hellenophones or barbarophones?
Assessing Pamphylian
intelligibility

Thursday 11th June, 2026
17.00 CEST, online

Link: https://unive.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_rrVGkZX-QoCXS5WhuZo5VA

ALPHA Seminars – Anatolian Linguistics, Philology, History and Archaeology

The ALPHA Seminar Series is an academic lecture initiative organized within the ERC-funded project CAncAn – Communication in Ancient Anatolia (ERC Grant Agreement No. 101088363).

Designed for specialists in the field, ALPHA provides a dedicated forum for the presentation and discussion of cutting-edge research on the ancient civilizations of Anatolia, approached from an interdisciplinary perspective.

Each seminar brings together scholars working across linguistics, philology, history, and archaeology to address questions concerning language, writing, and cultural interaction in the ancient Anatolian world. By placing these disciplines in dialogue, ALPHA reflects the interdisciplinary nature of the CAncAn team and its commitment to understanding communication across the ancient societies of Anatolia.

The series features invited lectures by leading researchers. For information on upcoming events, please visit the CAncAn project webpage.