

Giornata della ricerca (1): Focus on endangered languages and linguistics in Asia

8 March 2019, 09:00-17:00h

Sala A, Palazzo Vendramin dei Carmini

09:00 Keynote 1: Mandala Seyfeddinipur (SOAS)

We just scratched the surface: 16 years of supporting endangered languages documentation

10:00 Martha Tsutsui (SOAS)

Southern Amami Oshima Honorifics in the face of language loss

10:30 Elia dal Corso (SOAS & Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

Ainu dyadic time and its encoding into language

11:15 Andrea Drocco (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

Baṅgāñī, an endangered and controversial language of Indian Himalaya

11:45 Giulia Cabras (Free University Berlin)

Linguistic features and sociolinguistic context of Wutun, a language of the Amdo Sprachbund (Qinghai, People's Republic of China)

12:15 Patrick Heinrich (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

Language and subjective wellbeing in the Ryukyus: Outline of a project

12:45 Madoka Hammine (Lapland University)

Our way of multilingualism: Language-in-Education Policies in Japan

14:30 Keynote 2: Elisabetta Ragagnin (Free University Berlin & Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

The last speakers of Uygur-Urïankhay (Tuha) in Mongolia: Their importance for comparative Turcology

15:30 Giuseppe Pappalardo (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

Prosodic and sociophonetic variation of vowel devoicing in spontaneous Japanese: A corpus-based study

16:00 Anna Morbiato (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

What corpora can tell: New perspectives on Mandarin syntax

16:30 Bianca Basciano (Ca' Foscari University of Venice)

Emerging affixes in Chinese: A corpus-based study

Ca' Foscari
University of Venice

Department of Asian and North
African Studies

Organized by Patrick Heinrich,
Elisabetta Ragagnin,
Giuseppe Pappalardo