

Tiago Gil is Associate Professor of History of the Americas in the Department of History at University of Brasilia, Brazil and coordinator of the Digital Atlas of Portuguese America. He holds a B.A. in History from Federal University of Rio Grande do Sul (2000) an M.A. (2003), and a Ph.D. (2009) in Social History from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro. He is the author of "How to Make a Database in Historical Studies" (Springer, 2021) and "Taking speed seriously: motion, simultaneity, and context in map-making for historical analysis" Cartography and Geographic Information Science, v. 48, 4 (2021), among other articles, chapters, and books. His research interests are Digital History, Economic History, and databases.