Do you know what the Olympics Information Service (OIS) is? Are you curious about how OIS operates during the Olympic Games? Which are the skills required to work as OIS reporters during the Games to help the accredited media do their job?

Fondazione Milano Cortina 2026, as part of the Education Programme #Gen26, is offering the unique opportunity to 10 students (aged 18 to 28) to cover the Olympic Games as junior reporters, attending the competitions, interviewing athletes and working along senior sports reporters from all over the world in an international fast-paced environment.

Are you a student speaking English and Asian languages with good writing skills? Are you studying Marketing and Communication? You could be a good fit for the OIS team!

The workshop is open to all Ca' Foscari University students interested in languages, event and media services, and communications at the Olympic Games.

Only 30 seats are available
